[ADIRONDACKS]
A Week's Sojourn in the Adirondack Mountains [cover title: A Week of Camping at Third Lake Campsite 1927]. N.p.: s.n., 1927. Typescript with mounted photographs in original black stiff binder. 31 pp.; a double-page and a full-page hand-drawn map, 29 mounted gelatin silver prints. First leaf with minor glue residue near gutter, one or two spots, else fine.
An anonymous narrative of a camping trip in the Adirondacks. The party fished for trout (though sometimes ended up with shiners), foraged for blueberries and raspberries, and met some characters along the way, including (to the author's surprise) a female fire warden whom he observes "must have been descended from sturdy stock." The two maps are carefully hand-drawn in black and red ink, and upon close inspection the pencil lines are visible. A charming narrative and photographic record of roughing it in the Adirondacks in the 1920s.

C Estate of Arnold 'Jake' Johnson $200-300

Lot 18

[ADIRONDACKS]

WICKHAM, ROBERT S. Friendly Adirondack Peaks.

[BIG GAME - LAKE SUPERIOR]
GUNN, ALEXANDER. A Canoe Journey Along the North Shore of Lake Superior and Hunting Big Game. New York: [Privately Printed], 1902. First edition. Contemporary three-quarters green morocco gilt. With letterpress title, the text paginated from 197-324. A few spots to title and edges, rubbing to joint and extremities.
A scarce and somewhat anomalous title, this is possibly the second part of a two volume work by Gunn recording his letters and journals. We trace only one copy under this title and similarly paginated in OCLC, located at Cleveland Public Library. This work records a canoe trip in 1881 and a big game hunt in New Mexico in 1896. Gunn (1837-1901) was an Ohio industrialist who withdrew to the Zoar commune. His writings were printed at the De Vinne Press (where this was likely created) and published in 1902.

[COLORADO]

Photographically illustrated journal describing an 1890 hunting trip to Colorado. Cloth album bound with ties stamped "Souvenir Colorado 1890" on the upper cover, the album approximately 10 1/2 x 11 inches. Contains 43 typed pages in blue ink, the first leaf headed "The Slicker Club 1890," the text with approximately 41 photographs mounted within the text (each about 4 1/2 x 4 3/4 inches) and most with annotations by hand in red ink, the images depicting the hunting party, camp scenes, mountain and lake views, etc. The album closes with a manuscript map in pencil "Rough Sketch of Trapper's Lake" and a manuscript list of those in the party. The upper cover with a gilt square for a photograph which is not present resulting in some residue of the former mounting, the covers lightly soiled, the ties likely replaced, internally very well preserved but with some minor thumbsoiling and occasional short tears. The front blank of this album is signed "Amelia B. Barber", likely the author of the typescript within. The narrative here is of a hunting trip around Trapper Lake in 1890, with Barber providing much detail of the guides, her companions, the difficult terrain, etc. Such illustrated albums written by women of the period are certainly uncommon.

CANOVA, ANDREW P. Life and Adventures in South Florida. Tampa: Tribune Printing, 1906. Second edition (?). Original printed wrappers. 7 x 5 1/4 inches; portrait frontispiece, 158 pp., contents leaf at end. A fine copy overall with minor creases to wrappers, a small loss at spine tips, evidence of a former bookplate, the title with the stamp of a Florida bookseller and some residue at gutter and imprint from the front cover.

A second edition that appears equally rare as the first, we trace one copy of this 1906 edition on Rare Book Hub listed as with Lathrop Harper in 1914. The work provides a narrative of "Billy Bowlegs War" or the final standoff between the Seminole and Florida settlers and also offers a sketch of life in Florida at that time (1885) with hunting and fishing content. Howes lists this 1906 edition as the first reprint of the work but one 1912 entry on Rare Book Hub lists an 1888 edition which does not seem to exist elsewhere and is likely an error. "Collectors take a justifiable pride in the possession of this delightful book particularly (by first edition buffs) in its first state" (Edwards). An informative guide to the frontier compiled by a man who spent many years there. "After half a lifetime spent on the western plains and in the Rocky Mountains, Capt. Marcy was well qualified to advise the prospective emigrant, and he ably summarized his experience in this book. By 1859, the routes of overland travel had been well established, and Marcy set out twenty-eight of them, including one to the Pike's Peak gold region which had recently been discovered" (WCB 335:1). The folding map is significant: "This map covers the entire trans-Mississippi West, with the main emigrant routes and Capt. Marcy's various trails and routes. Though rather crude, it affords an excellent general view of the routes of travel just prior to the railroad building era, most of the routes shown by Marcy closely approximating the later railroad routes to the Pacific Coast" (Wheat Mapping 984; also noting full page map: Wheat 985). Cowan, p. 414; Edwards, p. 165; Graff 2676; Howes M279; Rader 2347; Rittenhouse 399; Sabin 44514; Smith 6509; Wagner-Camp 335:1. Offered with Marcy's Army Life on the Border (first edition, 1866).
